Allusions to such a method of writing on sticks very frequently occur in the voluminous remains of the poetry of the bards of Wales of all periods; and this is an important evidence of its existence from the most early times. To such evidence may be added another of at least an equally decided character; and which is, that the CoeWren y Beirdd is preserved among many other curious remains, collected under the sanction of several congresses of the bards, convened in the course of the fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth centuries, by the Nevilles, the Herbert!), and other noblemen and gentlemen of South Wales; and the last of these congresses was held in the year 1681,...
