When gastro-intestinal symptoms do occur a dose of calomel is given at night, followed by a saline draught in the morning, and a strict milk diet--three or four pints daily, diluted with barley, lime or soda water----takes the place of raw meat for two or three days. This oxidation, whereby heat is produced, is a constant vital process in which dead food material is broken up under the influence of living matter into simpler products. During fever the excretion of nitrogen and of CO, from the body becomes greater, the total oxidation of protein and nonprotein substances by the tissues is increased. the flow...
